

HOW TO WIN A HUSBAND.

Woman's sphere in this 20th century is not limited any more than man's. She can occupy almost any business position or profession, and yet the popular view of womanhood is that she best fits the position of wife and mother and head of the household. Every girl should know her heart and also know that her womanly system is equal to the strain of marriage. If a girl is nervous and irritable her chances are not so good as if she were calm and untroubled.

Liquid has no place in a girl's heart if she is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down, worn out for no reason that she can think of. The weak back, dizzy spells and black circles about the eyes are all symptoms of the source of the trouble and correct the irregularity. Stop the drains on the womanly system and the other symptoms will disappear. This can be done easily and intelligently. No sure cure is the World's Dispensary Medical Association, the proprietors of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, that they offer $500 reward for women who cannot be cured of leucorrhea, female weakness, irregularity or falling of the womb. All they ask is a fair and reasonable trial of their means of cure.

"After confinement I gained no strength," writes Mrs. A. Davis of Sackettville, Wis. "I was so weak I could hardly do any work. I don't know what to call the disease. I had a weak feeling in the pit of my stomach, felt miserable all over. I was not three months and a lady friend told me to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as it had done her so much good. I did so, and after taking three bottles was cured. It was about five years ago and I have had no return of the disease. An very thankful for the remedy. I cannot praise your Favorite Prescription enough. It is a wonderful medicine for women." Dr. Pierce's Pills are greatly laxative.

This great stock medicine is a money saver for stock raisers. It is a medicine, not a cheap food or condition powder. Though put up in canner form than Theodor's Black-Draught, it is the same as the cure of the digestion troubles of persons, it has the same qualities of invigorating digestion, stirring up the torpid liver and loosening the congested bowels for all stock and poultry. It is carefully prepared and its action is so healthful that stock grow and thrive with an occasional dose in their food. It cures hog cholera and makes hogs grow fat. It cures chicken cholera and roup and makes hens lay. It cures constipation, distemper and colds in horses, murrain in cattle, and makes a draught animal do more work for the food consumed. It gives animals and fowl of all kinds new life. Every farmer and raiser should certainly give it a trial.

It costs 25c a can and saves ten times its price in profit.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 25, 1904.
I have been using your Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine on my stock for some time. I have used all kinds of stock food but I have found that yours is the best for my purpose.

VILLAGE WIPED OUT

In State of Maine—Community Migrates Rather Than Work for a Trust.

NOTWICH, ME., May 1.—Hastings, the most unique settlement in Maine, if not in the United States, has suddenly ceased to exist, and where more than 1,000 persons lived two weeks ago, not one is to be found now. The church, school, houses and public stores, all built with the money contributed by the men who worked in the lumber camps and mills in the settlement, are deserted, and the shutters have been drawn in the houses which a few days ago were comfortable homes for the working men and their families.

The territory on which Hastings was situated was granted to Richard Bachelder, of the State of Massachusetts, more than 100 years ago. About forty years later four families moved there from Fryburg and cleared a spot in the valley of about 100 acres. A few years later they abandoned the place and A. Hastings and D. R. Hastings of Fryburg, became the purchasers.

In 1891 they sold the village site and twenty acres of land to the Wild River Lumber Company, of Island Pond, Vt. This company purchased at the same time 45,000 acres of timber land in New Hampshire, just across the New Hampshire line, and which gave them the largest timber tract in the world owned by one company. They put in a big steam mill, store, most of the houses, the electric system, sewers and public water systems, the cost of which was contributed to by the inhabitants, who were regarded as equal owners of the town with the mill proprietors.

They cut their timber at Bean's Purchase and hauled it by rail to their steam mill at Hastings, where it was cut up and shipped on a single track railroad to the main line of the Grand Trunk road, thirty miles away. Since the first stick of timber was cut the inhabitants of Hastings paid no taxes of any sort and a visit of the tax collector in his official capacity was an experience they never knew.

It was the most cosmopolitan of villages and had representatives of many nationalities among its borders. When the employees of the mill received their pay one could find conversing in a group, Russians, Poles, Swedes, Germans, Austrians, Danes, French, Irish, Armenians, Turks and English. The houses in the village had a foreign aspect, those on Main street being about 10x14 ft. as square as immense dry goods boxes, painted venetian red, with outside shutters each with six rooms, and each a counterpart of the other. All the houses were surrounded by huge piles of lumber and the larger buildings were bound to the earth by huge chains as a safeguard against mountain gales of spring freshets.

Despite the fact that nearly 1,000 persons lived in the village and nearly every nationality was represented, there is no record of an arrest being made for crime. There never had been a policeman or constable living in the village. The place had never had a pauper and had never considered it necessary to make any public provision for the support of the poor.

Hastings was the only town in the United States which did not have a carriage road, the only means of access to the town being over the railroad tracks which skirted perilously near the edge of the mountain side. On every other side of the village except where the railroad tracks are laid, the mountain is so steep that even a pedestrian could only climb it with difficulty.

Maine's wild game is primarily responsible for the passing of Hastings. Two years ago a party of sportsmen from New York, headed by the late Dr. H. M. Wells, went to Hastings to hunt the trout streams. In the party was an official of a large paper manufacturing corporation, who was surprised at the great amount of timber standing near Hastings which could be converted into wood pulp. KENTUCKY TRADUCERS.

Truthful Words About Kentucky and Her Critics in Recent Years.

The Atlanta Constitution says: For nearly five years the Republican papers of this country have been filled with abuse of the State of Kentucky. The integrity of the courts has been impugned, the action of Republican Governors of Indiana for refusing to give up a man charged with complicity in a horrible crime has been endorsed. No language has been too strong for these critics. As a natural consequence, thousands upon thousands of good people have been induced to believe that conditions approaching anarchy prevailed throughout Kentucky, and that these were made possible by Democratic use of the courts to punish men solely because they were Republicans.

The recent action of these same courts in refusing to grant bail to Judge Hargis and other prominent Democrats charged with complicity in the murder of James Marcan, in Breathitt county, ought to call for apologies from the Republican newspapers for their tirade against Kentucky. Here is a case where the shoe is on the other foot, as the saying goes. Governor Goebel was assassinated solely because he was a Democrat. The courts have been diligent in their efforts to punish every body connected with the horrible crime—the eyes of the critics to whom we refer. Every appeal has been to party prejudice in favor of those who have been brought to trial, and especially in behalf of the ex-Governor, who has since made his home in Indiana to escape trial.

Now, every charge made by these partisan defenders of the men charged with complicity in the killing of Goebel must, in the face of the Hargis proceedings, fall to the ground. If the Kentucky courts were handled for partisan purposes certainly the "pull" would have been successful in the case of this man. Judge Hargis is a member of the State Central Democratic Committee and a strong individual power throughout his section of the State. Alexander Hargis, another of the accused men, has been a member of the State Senate and with Sheriff Callahan and Elbert Hargis, forms what is known as Judge Hargis' cabinet. These men have dominated the politics of Breathitt county and have had a pronounced influence upon the political affairs of every nearby county. The speedy trial of the Hargises and Callahan, the Louisville Times says:

No other decision by a member of the Kentucky judiciary in years has received and is certain to receive the more unanimous endorsement of the Democratic press. Judge Parker has regarded solely the nature of the crime, and has ignored the political affiliation and power of those charged with its commission. In so doing he has acted in accordance, not only with his own ideas of right, but with that of every Democratic newspaper of weight in the State. The speedy trial of the Hargises and Callahan and their prompt and uncompromising punishment, if proven guilty, is both desired and expected, as much because they are Democrats who will have been shown to have betrayed a trust, as because they have been charged of crimes that, in themselves, deserve the severest penalty.

There can be no question but this represents the true state of popular feeling in Kentucky. Despite all the misrepresentation and abuse heaped upon them, Kentuckians are peaceful, law-abiding lovers of justice, jealous at all times of the reputation of their courts.

Perhaps it is too much to expect of the Republican newspapers that they endeavor to make amends for the injustice they have done Kentucky in connection with the Goebel murder and the men charged with that crime, but it ought not to be so.

HAVE EQUAL CHANCE

No Reason Why Democrats Should Not Fare Equally With Republicans.

The Glasgow Times says: Democrats in Kentucky are making a great mistake in not applying for, and standing examinations for positions as rural free delivery mail carriers.

These places are under the civil service rules. They are open to every American citizen between the ages of eighteen and fifty-five years of age. The questions asked are simple and easily within the range of any man of average intelligence and common school education. Democrats, to say the least of it, are fully as capable of passing these examinations as are Republicans; yet the former have, apparently without a struggle, turned over this branch of the public service in Kentucky to the Republicans.

Of course, the prevailing impression is that it is useless for Democrats to apply for these places, that by a right of party-success they belong to the Republicans as the spoils of political war and that the door of preferment is absolutely closed to all except the individual who can show a clean Republican record. The Times does not believe this to be the case. In several States, a large number of Democrats have won positions by the sheer force of merit in examinations—in some States a majority of rural carriers are Democrats. There is no reason why this should not be the case in Kentucky.

Examinations for rural carriers are not beyond the reach of thousands of Democrats, and, so far as the actual questions are concerned, and conducted with the utmost apparent fairness. When the "class"—the applicants—are assembled, the postmaster distributes the forms to be filled out impartially; when the answers are prepared, he seals them up in the presence of all the "class" and forwards them to the civil service commission in Washington. Not one word of politics is permitted, nor can the examination questions be so marked as to disclose the political inclinations of an individual undergoing working. Happily you can soon set them to work again, cure your pains, and restore yourself to health and contentment. Try it. Sold by Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro., Hartford, Ky., J. B. In speaking of Pe-ru-na, Robert Downing, the famous tragedian, says: "I find Pe-ru-na a preventative against all sudden summer ills that sweep upon one in changing climates and water. It is the finest traveling companion and safeguard against malarial influences."

"You may notice that persons in poor health always find the heat most intolerable; this I avoid by using Pe-ru-na. I know by the thermometer that the weather is hot, yet I have felt the heat less this summer than ever."

"The cooling action of Pe-ru-na on the mucous membranes makes it invaluable to actors and singers, as it does away with that tendency to sudden hoarseness so apt to overtake one on emerging from a hot dressing room to a draughty stage."

"To sum it up, Pe-ru-na has done me more good than any tonic I have ever taken."—Robert Downing.
